TERM - 3

Preface

The English Language textbook has been designed to enable a fun-filled and engaging experience in learning the language. The approach allows for plenty of practice in the four language skills. It focuses on structural practice and vocabulary enrichment through a variety of language learning activities. These activities evoke interest and engage practice in the language and thus lead to retention.

As per NCF 2005, language is learnt when it is taught with exposure in meaningful context rather than as a subject. In accordance with this, the textbook has been drafted with themes related or familiar to children. The units provide space for effective individual and pair work and thus allows the teacher to focus on time management in multi-level classrooms.

LET US LEARN

FIVE DETECTIVES

It was a sunny afternoon. After a long time in Ooty, Arul and Amudha were sitting on the balcony. The last three vacations were very exciting for them as they were involved in solving three mysterious cases in the city. They were missing their friends - Sreejith, Jessy, and Farooq.

They called themselves 'The Five Detectives' or 5D. They were famous in Ooty for their courage and skill. The police appreciated 5D for their admirable acts. Amudha and Arul missed Pablo. Pablo was Sreejith's dog. He played an important role in solving the mysteries.

After a week:

Sreejith, Jessy, Farooq and Pablo came to Amudha and Arul's house. Pablo was jumping with joy and continuously wagging his tail.

Amudha: I am so happy to see you all.

Arul: Now we can all head to solve a mystery. It will make our vacation interesting.

Sreejith: Mystery? Did something happen in the town while I was gone?

Arul: No, Sree. Nothing at all.

Amudha urged that they all would go to the town's fair. She told them about different games, magicians and most importantly the 'Waxworks', a studio with many wax figures. After a lot of pestering, everyone agreed to go. On their way back, they saw Inspector Velayudham on his bike. He was the inspector of the area. "Inspector Velayudham has been very busy these days," said Amudha. This made the group curious about what was happening in the city that they had no clue at all.

Monday:

As Jessy went to ask permission to her father who was a secret police agent to meet her friends, she overheard her father talking on the phone about a robbery that was expected to take place in the museum. Jessy rushed to see her friends in the morning and told them what she had heard.

Sreejith: Oh, now I know what Inspector Velayudham is up to.

Jessy: Let us solve this case before he does.

Sreejith: I feel we will find more clues if we are near the city area. We will also be able to observe more things. I will disguise myself as that old man we saw on the street.

Everyone agreed to it. Sreejith dressed as the old man and he sat on the old man's bench, coughed and sniffed like him. No one could recognise Sreejith. Soon, a man on a cycle came and sat next to Sreejith.

He said, "Where have you been since yesterday? Take this. The man handed over a packet of chocolate to Sreejith and went away.

Sreejith took the packet and kept it in his pocket. He saw the real old man coming in his direction from the other side. He also saw Inspector Velayudham rushing out of a shop towards him. Farooq and Jessy were watching all this from afar. They got worried and rushed with Pablo towards the Inspector. Pablo started barking and jumping on the Inspector. The inspector was annoyed with the dog. Sreejith saw it as a chance to run from there. He hid in a bush nearby. Inspector Velayudham ran towards the actual old man and caught him. Then, he asked him to give the chocolate to him. The old man was puzzled. Inspector investigated the old man and found nothing.

While this was happening, the 5D gathered in Jessy's garage. They opened the packet to find a small chit. They opened it and found a list of grocery. They were very confused.

Amudha: Sree, is it a code?

Sreejith: Yes, it seems so.

Amudha: I wonder that it is written in some kind of a magic pen like the one you showed us.

Jessy: It could be. When we show it under a light, we can see the writing.

Jessy got the magic pen. They flashed the light on the paper, and some words glowed on it. The message said, "Tell Number 3. Waxworks. Tuesday. 9 p.m. - Number 5".

Arul: Tomorrow is Tuesday. So the gang is meeting tomorrow.

While they sat in the garden, Inspector Velayudham saw Sreejith dressed as the old man. He was furious. Then Sreejith had to confess. He handed over the chit to the inspector. The inspector was glad to have found the chit but was furious about their behavior. He warned them to stay away from the case. But they didn't.

Sreejith's idea was to disguise himself as a wax statue. As it will be the most easy way to get all the information. That evening all of them went to 'Waxworks'. They observed each wax statue and noted down details. While getting out of Waxworks, Sreejith unlocked one of the windows in the room.

Tuesday Night:

Sreejith saw the Inspector inside Waxworks and had no way of getting in without being noticed. He was really sad and went home. In the morning, Sreejith heard the news of Inspector Velayudham arrested the three robbers with a diamond necklace. Everyone was upset that they didn't get the chance to solve the mystery. As they sat in Jessy's living room, they overheard Jessy's father on a call asking "Where is the real necklace?"

This news alarmed the 5D. Farooq told everyone to rush to the city as some message would be passed regarding this. Within no time, the 5D was in front of the old man's bench. Everyone sat at different places to keep an eye on the old man. After an hour, a man came and sat next to the old man. The old man was busy with drawing something on the ground with his stick.

They noticed that inspector Velayudham was observing at a distance and started following that man. But they waited for the old man to leave and went to see what he had drawn on the ground and it said 'Waxworks'.

At Waxworks:

Sreejith: Amudha, if you were to place the diamond necklace in this place where would you place it?

Amudha thought for a second and said, "On the princess statue. She has already wored so many jewels that this will go unnoticed."

Everyone's eyes lit up. They walked straight to the princess statue. They saw the diamond necklace. Sreejith carefully removed it and kept it in his pocket. As soon as they came out, there was a senior policeman standing. The children went straight to him and handed over the diamond necklace. They told him the whole story. They were appreciated by Inspector Velayudham and Jessy's father for their courage and dedication towards the welfare of the city.

LET US SPEAK

Delivering a speech

Today, we will learn to deliver a speech. There are three important steps to learn to deliver a speech. Let us practise each of these steps!

Step 1: CONNECT

- Maintain eye contact with all
- Move your hands to express
- Maintain your volume (everyone should be able to hear you)

Now, can we try to connect? Pair up and speak to your partner on the topic "My favourite hero" for 30 seconds.

Step 2: CONSTRUCT

Topic : Good day to one and all. Today, I am going to speak about _____.

Opinion : I feel _____. (Express your opinion of the topic.)

Examples : Give three examples to strengthen your opinion.

Opinion : Tell your opinion again.

Closing : Thank you all.

Now, can we try to construct? Pair up and speak to your partner on the topic "My favourite hero" for 30 seconds but this time use both connect and construct. Check if your partner uses the steps to construct.

Step 3: CONTENT

Take a topic and express your feelings about it. It can be about a family trip, a broken tap or anything else that has affected you. Make sure you care about the topic to be able to CONNECT and CONSTRUCT.

Now, let us try to CONNECT and CONSTRUCT with our own CONTENT. Choose a topic you really care about and deliver a 30-second speech to your class. Use the table below to help you.

Topic :	_____	(What is your topic?)
Opinion :	_____	(How do you feel about the topic?)
Example 1 :	_____	(Why do you feel so?)
Example 2 :	_____	(Why do you feel so?)
Example 3 :	_____	(Why do you feel so?)
Opinion :	_____	(How do you feel about the topic?)
Closing :	_____

Note: You can give children 5-7 minutes to prepare. Children should not write the speech. They should focus on all the three steps.

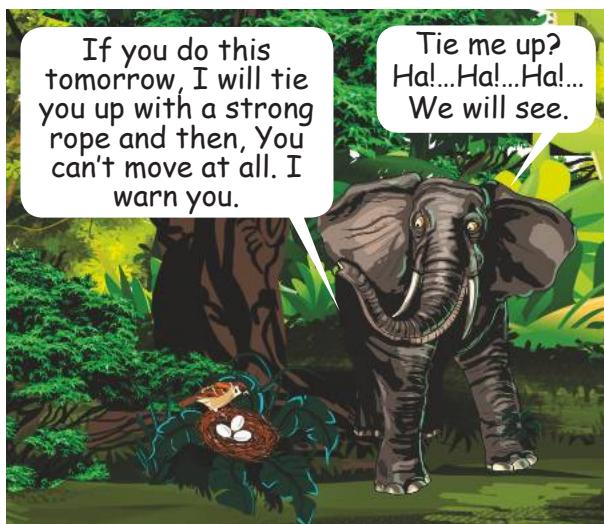

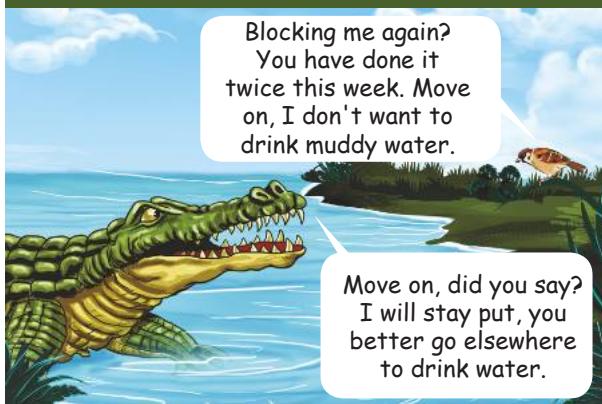

LET US READ

The Witty Sparrow

Once, a very clever brown sparrow lived in a forest laid three eggs in her nest. The nest was in a bush. All the animals greeted her 'Madam' with respect. Gullu, the young elephant never did so. THUD! THUD!, Gullu walked past the bush purposefully. It rattled the nest. Madam was worried that Gullu might crack the eggs.

That afternoon, she went to the river bank to drink water. A crocodile was stretching in the spot where she was drinking water.

Guess how would the sparrow pull the elephant and the crocodile.

The sparrow took a strong creeper, and tied the elephant on one end.

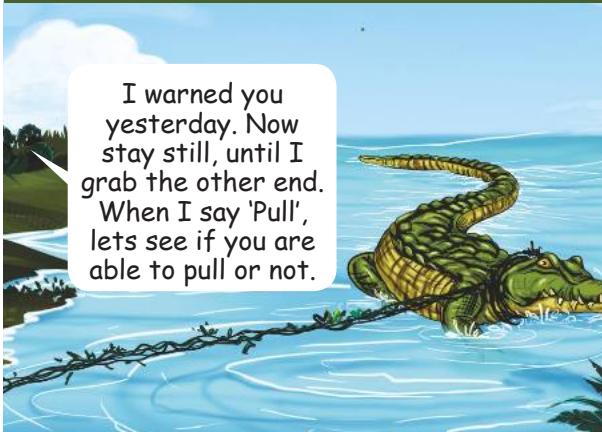

USHHHHH! Don't you dare to move. Stay here, until I fly and reach the other end of the rope to pull you. When I say 'pull', pull with all your strength. Let us see if you can move an inch.

It went to the river, saw the crocodile blocking its way.

I will not move! Just like yesterday, drink the muddy water.

Sparrow took the other end of the creeper and tied the crocodile.

I warned you yesterday. Now stay still, until I grab the other end. When I say 'Pull', lets see if you are able to pull or not.

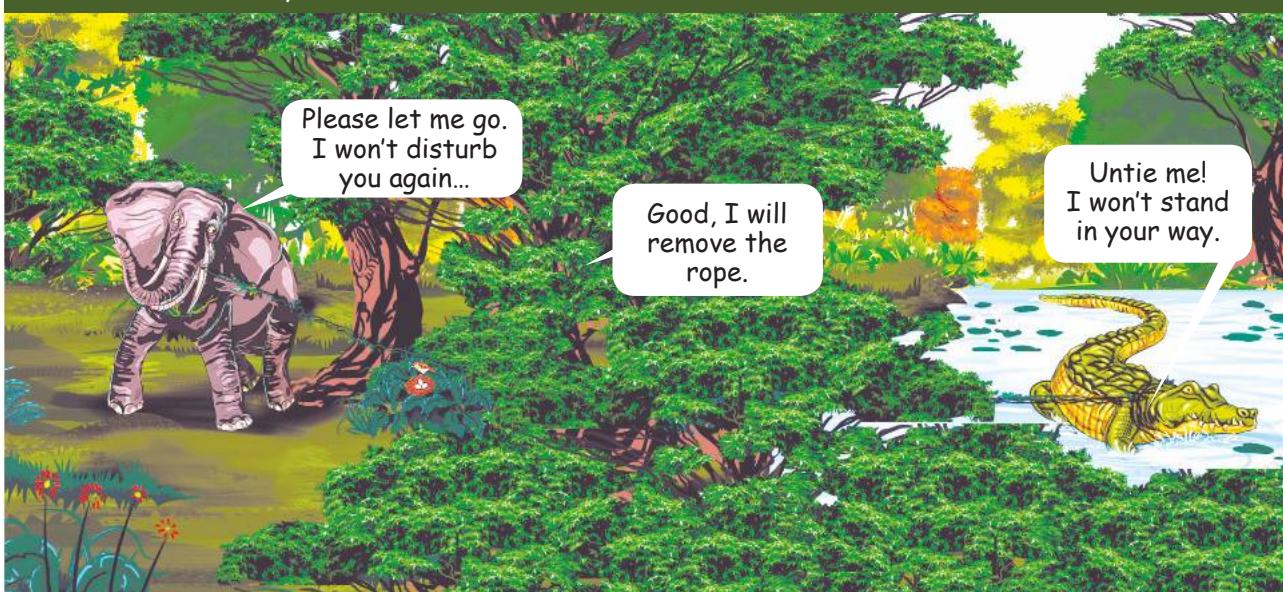

Sparrow went to the centre of the creeper.

PULL

The elephant and the crocodile pulled each other at the same time.

This went on all day. At last, both the animals were exhausted.

Please let me go. I won't disturb you again...

Good, I will remove the rope.

Untie me! I won't stand in your way.

LET US READ ALOUD

Read the passage 3 times and colour a camel each time.

Once two merchants lost a camel. They met a boy who was passing by and asked him if he had seen it. The boy said he had not seen the camel. He asked, "Was your camel blind in the right eye?". "Yes, it was", said the merchants. "Was it lame in one left foot?", asked the boy. It was!", said the merchants. "Was it's front tooth missing?" asked the boy." yes" they said. "Did it have honey on one side and wheat on the other?". "yes!" they answered. "Please take us to it."

"But, I have not seen your camel," said the boy "and I do not know where it is". The merchants got angry and said, "Really! How could you tell us everything about our camel?" "That is my secret" said the boy.

The merchants took him to the king. The boy told the king that he had not seen it. Then, the king asked him how he knew so much about it. The boy said that the camel had eaten grass only on the left side of the path. So he knew that it was blind in the right eye. The marks of its one left foot were faint. This showed that the camel was lame. While eating grass, it had not eaten the grass in the middle. So he learnt that it had lost its front teeth. There were ants carrying grains of wheat on one side of the path and flies eating honey on the other.

Find and write the clues.

LET US LEARN

The Cracked Coffee Cup

Kani was waiting for her parents to return from work. She was eager to talk to her parents about her day at school. Suddenly, Teddy, the dog ran to the gate with his favorite pillow.

"Teddy, where are you running?" asked Kani.

Kani ran after Teddy to see where he was going. Kani's parents were at the gate. Teddy was so happy to see them and he took his pillow as a sign of welcoming them. Teddy would not stop wagging his tail and followed them until they pet him. Kani didn't even wait for a moment and started talking about her day to her parents.

It was a Saturday morning. At 9 a.m., while Kani was painting, Teddy ran to the gate with his pillow.

"Teddy, parents are here and where are you running now?" asked Kani.

Kani ran after him. This time it was Selvi, the house helper at the gate. Teddy would not stop wagging his tail and followed her until she pet him. Selvi then started cleaning the house and every time she walked near Teddy, he would wag his tail. Kani walked into the kitchen where Selvi was cleaning the vessels. Near the kitchen sink, Kani saw an old, cracked cup with coffee in it. After finishing all the work at home, Selvi drank the coffee.

At around 12 noon, while Kani and Teddy were in the garden, she heard someone whistling. Teddy again ran to the gate with his pillow.

"Teddy, Selvi akka left an hour ago. Why are you running again?" asked Kani.

Kani ran after him. This time it was Muthu. Muthu collects garbage from every house. Teddy would not stop wagging his tail until Muthu pet him. Kani ran to the kitchen to pick up the garbage bag.

"Kani, will you eat these sweets? There are only two left and they are getting old." asked Kani's mom.

"No, I won't eat", replied Kani.

"There is also some leftover rice from yesterday. I will pack both the sweets and rice. We can give it to Muthu," said Kani's mom.

Kani drops off the garbage and gave Muthu the leftover food.

After an hour, Kani's father prepared Kani's favorite biryani. Kani's family sat to have lunch.

"We are having guests at home, Kani", said her mom.

"Who is coming?" asked Kani.

"Rani aunty and her 2-year-old son Anbu are coming from America," replied her mom.

"I am very excited to play with Anbu. At what time are they coming?"

"Around 5 p.m." replied her mom.

"Before they come home, you take Teddy for a walk. Ok?" said Kani's father.

"Sure," said Kani.

After a few hours of nap, Kani's parents started preparing dinner for Rani aunty. Kani's mom took the new dinner plates, cups and spoons from the cupboard and cleans them.

Kani took Teddy out for a walk. While crossing a provision store at the end of the street, Teddy suddenly started running.

"Teddy, why are you running now?" asked Kani.

Kani ran with Teddy, holding his leash very tightly.

This time it was Amar, the provision shop owner who was standing outside the shop. Teddy ran to him and would not stop wagging his tail until Amar pet him. There was a dog lying outside the shop. Kani remembered how some people would throw stones at this dog. While she was thinking about it, Teddy started playing with that dog. Kani pet the other dog.

After a few minutes, Teddy and Kani started walking into the next street.

Teddy started running again.

"Oh no. Teddy, not again. Why are you running again? Who is it now?", said Kani.

This time it was Mary. She was a differently abled person who sells candles outside a church. Teddy ran to her and would not stop wagging his tail until she pet him. They continued walking. Teddy and Kani finally reached home and were ready to welcome guests. Kani's family had a great time with Rani aunty and her son. After a long day, they all went to sleep.

Kani was sleeping and suddenly saw flashes of the broken coffee cup, leftover food, the street dog getting hit by stones in her dream. Kani woke up very disturbed. She looked around. She drank water and went back to sleep. After a while, Kani saw flashes of Teddy playing with Mary, Muthu and Anbu. Kani woke up again but this time tears filled her eyes. She realized how Teddy was compassionate and how he loved everyone equally. At that moment, Kani decided that she would also treat everyone equally with love and respect. She hugged Teddy and kissed him. Teddy wagged his tail and both went back to sleep.

Kani narrated the entire dream to her parents. Kani parents didn't say a word and remained very quiet. The same day at 9 am, Teddy ran to the gate with his pillow. It was Selvi again. Selvi started doing her routine of cleaning dishes. Kani walked into the kitchen to see a new coffee cup on the counter. Kani smiled and walked back to the room with a renewed hope.

LET US READ

The New Start

Tenzin, a boy from Tibet was forced to leave his country. He writes about his experience in his journal. Let us read about his experience.

My name is Tenzin. I am from Tibet. From Tibet, we first migrated to Himachal Pradesh in India. While we lived in a refugee camp in India, I learnt a few words in English. Then, we moved from Himachal Pradesh, we moved to Karnataka.

My family had a hard time adjusting to this new country. We moved many times. We first lived in McLeod Ganj, and then we moved to Mysore. And from Mysore, we went to Gurupura and then to Kollegal. I was tired and homesick. Finally, we decided to come back and settle in Gurupura.

Beginning a new life in a new place was not easy. We didn't understand the system in India. We didn't know how to get a house. Shopping for food was the most difficult job. We didn't know the names of the items we wanted to buy.

We asked the Refugee Relief Group to help us. They arranged a house for us and showed us where to buy what we needed. They even helped us get admission to the school close to our house. I started going to school. In the beginning, I didn't understand anything. I often thought of my friends in Tibet. I would cry every day after I returned from school. I wanted to go back to my school and be with my friends.

Every year we need to go to the government office and get our book signed. Mother says that, if we miss getting it signed then we will have to leave India too.

Now, I have made friends here. There is Julie, my art and craft teacher. She is a very nice person. She helps me learn English words. Miss Malliga is also a wonderful teacher. She teaches me computers. I have a friend whose name is Binsa. She is from Nepal. She didn't know English either when she came here. Now we learn and practise English together. There is Nimmi who fights with everyone who teases us. And I must not forget to mention Charles, who taught me how to play baseball.

I often wonder, how would it be if I had lived in the same place all my life? I miss my home in Tibet. But that does not mean that I am not grateful to India, its people and the government. While many people are my friends, there are still many who look at us as though we were aliens. Sometimes, I want to tell them that we are humans too. We live on Earth too, just a different part of Earth.

Our history teacher tells us that is people who made the boundaries of the countries. We drew the lines before, we draw the lines now, and we will continue to draw new lines. I think we would not stop braving likes unless we realise that we are all one! We all are humans, and we live together on Earth. We need to share and grow with each other.

Now, I wonder if we did not have the boundaries, will we need weapons? I think of this, will we need protection from our own people? Does an eagle ever need to be saved from another eagle? Then, why do people have to be saved from other people?

Which quality makes 'world is one and human is one'?

I want to help people realise that we are all one. And that, it is up to us to see beyond the boundaries and connect as people. Only then we can fight the real evil of greed and injustice in the world, together.

I want to end by saying that I am happy now. My mother says we can be happy anywhere. I enjoy being here. Many people are very nice and helpful. I still remember my friends and my school in Tibet. I want to visit them when I grow up to tell them that we live in a wonderful world. To tell them that the world can be united only by its people.

Come, join me on this journey to make this world better.

A safer place. A happier place. A place with no boundaries.

LET US LEARN

The Monster Tree

It is very dark, and the wind is whistling, no one is around. One can hear the cry of a wolf far away. The bush is dancing to the wind's music. It seems as if it was a welcome dance. Behind the bush, there was a huge shadow. It moved slightly and, for a second, everything was quiet. No wind, no movement, nothing. There was dead silence. Suddenly, a bolt of massive lightning appeared with a rumble of thunder. In the lightning, I could see the tree. It was a monster tree. I got scared and wanted to run away. As I screamed in fear, the monster woke up. I could see it, now awake, transformed into a monster amid the bolts of lightning that hit the ground.

I wanted to run, but I couldn't move my legs. The reeds from the bush have caught my legs, "Oh my god! It is going to kill me,"

I thought! I tried to free my legs but in vain. The monster's branches became very sharp, like a sword, and came towards me. My heart raced and, I felt it might burst.

"Mommeeeeee!!"

"Jana! What happened? Get up! Did you have a nightmare?" asked her mother. Jana hugged her mother and slept with her. Her mother asked her about the dream in the morning, but Jana said nothing. Only a month ago Jana and her family had come to the village.

The previous day, Jana's friend was telling her, "It was a very big peepal tree at the entrance of the village. All children used to play under it, and many birds made nests on it. The elders rested in the shade. But one day two men were running away from the tree. They said that there was a monster in it and asked the people to not go near it. The children ignored the warning and went there to play. When the children stepped near the tree, it shook its leaves. They hadn't seen the tree like this. They looked at one another and, altogether took another step. The tree twisted its branches and threw the swing near them. Then, the trunk of the tree cracked open and the tree roared. The tree had become a monster. They got scared and ran away."

What can be the reason for the tree to become a monster?

She also said, "Children went to the village and told the elders what had happened near the tree. No one believed them. Soon many more got affected by the tree, and this worried the people of the village. They planned to cut it. But the village head stopped them. He told them how the tree had helped the village. He advised them to make a fence around the tree to stop people from going near it. Since then, the tree is called the monster tree. Many years have passed, and the area near the tree is desolate now."

The previous evening, Jana went to play with her friends. She was a brave and curious little girl. They were playing a few meters away from the monster tree. Jana was waiting for her turn. Just then, she felt her ears tingle. She removed her earrings and kept it on the ground. Suddenly, a squirrel took her earring and ran away. She chased it, and before she knew, she was in front of the monster tree. Her friends shouted, "No, Jana! Don't go there!" She replied, "I have to find my earring." Then, they shouted in fear, "It is behind you. Run Jana! Run!" She turned and saw one of the branches coming to hit her. She bent down and dodged it. She ran away from the tree. That night, she had the nightmare.

That day Jana decided to overcome her fear. So, she asked more about the monster tree. She came to know that the tree was good and helpful. She put her fear away and tried to find the reason for the change in tree's behaviour. So, she spent many days watching the tree. She went to the tree whenever she had the time. She felt that the tree was also watching her.

One day, she decided to go near the tree. When she crossed the fenced area, the tree started to scare her. But, not as much as before. She stepped forward, and the tree swayed its branches again. Then, the tree dropped its sharp branches close to her. Yet, she was not afraid. When she was going to touch the tree, it opened its mouth and roared. Jana calmly touched the tree and patted it. The branches stopped moving, and it was quiet.

The tree grumbled, "Go away! Please, go away!" She asked, "Why? I know you are a good tree. Why are you doing this?" The tree shouted, "Yes... I was good but, it is only because of you I have become like this!" "Sorry! You are a little girl. What would you do? Wait, let me call my friends," said the tree. "Come out," said the tree. In a few seconds, one by one, many squirrels came out from the tree. Hundreds of them were there. The tree continued, "They are the reason for me to become a monster. Long ago, a pregnant squirrel came here." She said, "I am the last of my kind in this village. The hunters are trying to kill me. Please save me." The tree said, "I did not know that people were so selfish. They destroy everything mercilessly even today. I wanted to save the squirrels. So, I became a monster."

After listening to the tree's story, Jana felt embarrassed. She went to the village head and explained. The villagers understood their mistake and took an oath not to do any harm to nature. From then on the villagers started calling it 'The Mother Tree'.

LET US READ

The Case of The Missing Water

The tank in Divya's village was almost dry. Ammachi began to pray for rain. Amma collected all the buckets and pots and vessels in the house and filled them up.

"We need to store as much water as we can," Amma said.

Appa collected tools to dig the tank a little deeper. "We just need enough water until the rains arrive," he said.

Divya got out her notebook and pencil. She put on her thinking cap and followed her parents to the tank. She examined the tank bed closely. It was cracked and dusty.

Divya wondered, "Where did the water in the tank go? Did it run away? Was it stolen? This is a mystery!"

Divya loved solving mysteries: Once when the time Ammachи couldn't find her reading glasses.

Divya had found them in her book, marking the page she was reading.

"I'll find that water," Divya muttered to herself.

Divya walked to the other side of the tank, past dead fish and dried reeds.

"Do you know where the water could have gone?" Divya asked a fisherman.

"Downstream?" the fisherman suggested.

Divya followed the dry stream bed down the hill. At the bottom was another tank. It had lots of goats, but no water.

Divya asked the goatherd, "Do you know where the water might be?"

"Upstream," the goatherd suggested.

"That's where I came from," Divya said. "No water there."

"Further up, then?" the goatherd said. "That's where your water comes from."

Divya climbed up to the tank. Then she climbed up some more to a tank further up the hill. There was no water, no birds. There was only one person there, whose name was Rani.

"Rani, I can't find any water. Any idea where it's gone?" Divya called to her. She knew Rani from schooling.

"Downstream," Rani called back.

Divya was suddenly angry. She stomped her foot.

"NO!" she shouted. "It's not. I have searched and searched. It's not upstream or downstream. Got it?"

"How about up there?" Rani suggested.

Divya and Rani looked up at the sky. The sun glared back at them. Everything was white-hot and dusty.

"No," they agreed together. "No water there."

Divya collapsed into the boat with Rani and gnawed on a lotus stem. She got tired.

"Do you know why Manju's parents left the village," Divya asked. "They went to the city where they have water. Maybe we should all go." said Divya.

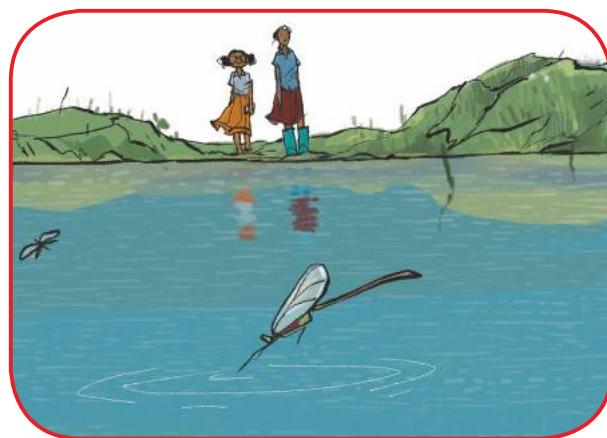

"You go," Rani snapped. "No one asked you to be here."

"Fine," Divya said. And she stomped back home. But it wasn't fine! There was still no water, still no rain.

The next day, Divya brushed her teeth with muddy tank water in a tiny glass.

"Thooo!" she spat.

In school, the class was half-empty. More families had left the area. She was missing all her friends! In the middle of Environmental Studies class, she turned and ran out of school.

She ran and ran until she was panting. She finally sat at the side of the road.

"I have to find the water!" she huffed.

"Can I help?" said a voice. It was Rani who had seen Divya running away from school.

Divya beamed. "Yes!"

"We have to do this properly," Rani said, "Like real Sanitary Engineers."

"Like who...?" Divya asked.

"Sanitary Engineers build pipes and tanks and drains. I am going to be one when I grow up," Rani said.

Divya and Rani decided to draw a map of their village and all its tanks and streams, showing all the places where the water might have flowed.

Where could the water possibly have gone?

Finally, they sat back and pored over the map. "We haven't seen that tank yet," Divya pointed to one of the tanks they had drawn.

"Let's go," Rani agreed.

Divya and Rani began climbing up the hill. The stream here was dry as well.

"Maybe we shouldn't have missed school. This tank is probably dry as well," Rani said sadly.

When they reached the tank, Divya and Rani realised they were wrong.

This tank was full!

Rani pointed at a small pump at the end of the lake. There was a tanker just below the bund, collecting water as it flowed. A man stood by, guiding the tanker.

"Mystery solved," said Divya angrily.

"Where are you taking our water?" Divya wanted to know.

"The city," the man said. "I need to supply nine thousand litres today!"

"That's not fair!" Rani said.

The man shrugged, "That's how it is."

"My friend is a Sanitary Engineer," Divya yelled. "She knows what's fair."

The man laughed. "Sanitary Engineer it seems! You're just children!"

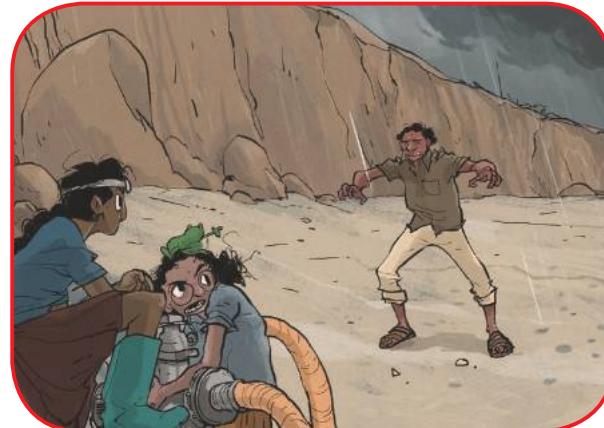

Rani said quietly, "Yes, but I know you can't just take our water away."

"Go home," the man said. "You can't change anything!"

Divya had an idea. She hugged the pump. "You can't turn it on now!"

Rani ran up to hug the pump too.

"Hey!" said the man. Now he was really angry. "Just go home," he said.

That was when the clouds broke, and rain poured.

"The monsoon is here!" Divya shouted.

"I'm going home, even if you aren't," the tanker man said.

It rained and rained.

WOOSH, the bund overflowed,
and the stream rushed down,
splashing them.

"The water has been found!

Words that help you create suspense: suddenly, just then, in that moment, all of a sudden, silently, in alarm, scared, from the shadows, dark, unexpectedly etc.

Let us use these words to write a paragraph on "A day in the forest"

Suddenly in a distance, I noticed some paws on the mud. My head turned red with fear and I silently stepped back. Just then, I saw a big brown furry animal with green eyes coming out of the shadows. In that moment, I didn't know what I had to do. I screamed and ran. All of a sudden, I heard a howl behind me. I turned to see two wolves chasing me.

Now, why don't you try to write a story with suspense?

Ninh explains, the Rules of Association Football. Association Football, more commonly known as 'soccer' in North America and Football pretty much everywhere else in the world, is a game played with two teams of 18 players, with 11 players taking the field at any onetime. The object of the game is for your team to score more goals than the opposing team. To score a goal, you must put ball into your opponent's goal. For it to count, the whole of the ball must cross the goal line. In football, you are allowed to touch the ball with every part of your body except your arms. The main ways to move the ball is to kick the ball to a team mate which is known as a pass, or run with the ball whilst controlling it with your feet, known as dribbling. When the ball is in the air, players can head or chest the ball as well. Teams will usually orchestrate passes and dribbles so that the ball travels up the field so that they can score. The defending team will try and stop you by tackling. They can intercept passes, block shots or try and kick the ball away from you and move the ball in the other direction so that they can score themselves. A defender must be careful here, as if the referee decides that they made contact with the player without touching the ball, or made contact without trying to win ball, he can award a foul against them. Fouls usually lead to free kicks, but can also lead to a yellow card which is a warning, or a red card where you are sent off the pitch. Two yellow cards equals one red card. The game is played in two halves of 45 minutes, for a total playing time of 90 minutes. There's a 15 minute break at half time. Unlike most other sports, in football when there is a stoppage in play - the clock does not stop. Instead, a referee will add the amount of time all the stoppages last for, and they will play this as 'added time' at the end of each half. Highest score at the end of 90 minutes plus added time, wins. There are ties in Football, and if both teams have the same amount of goals at the end of time, this is declared as a draw. Football is really a simple game and that's basically it.

It is my first day at school. Mummy is holding my hand and walking with me. "I am grown up now," I say. "Let go, let go!" Mummy holds my hand very tight. There are many children near the school. They come by bus. They come by car. They come by rickshaw. They cycle. They walk, like me. We reach the gate. Mummy lets go of my hand. She stays at the gate. I have to go inside alone. There are many new faces all around me. I take one step. I take another step. I look back. Mummy gets smaller as I walk away. Will she disappear? I run back to her. I don't feel so grown up. I hold her hand. "Don't go away," I say. Everyone is inside now. I am the only one outside. The teacher comes out. She smiles at me. I smile back. Mummy says, "Rani, I will be here when you come out." I let go of her hand. She waves to me. I run inside. Mummy will be there after school!

• Unit 3 •

It rained through the night in Chennai. India's 4th largest city has experienced its heaviest rainfall in more than a hundred years. With the rain not letting up, much of the city is now under water. These pictures sent to us by local residents, show us the extent of the devastation. Navigating through the flooded streets is difficult, and at times difficult leaving many areas cut off. The airport is closed and train services suspended, while highways leading to Chennai are blocked. The army and navy are now being deployed to get to those who are still stranded. In some parts of the city, neighbourhoods are under several feet of water and residents have had to go without food. The power supply in many areas have also been cut. The rain is said to be caused by a depression in Bay of Bengal. With more showers expected, it is going to be a while before Chennai clears up.
